Synopsis:

It's a bright sunny day in Pandoro and Amanda the Panda is getting ready for her big move to Pancity. In her new school, Amanda keeps her head in her books, studying indoors all day. As her eyes begin to ache, she remembers her mummy's advice, "Remember to give your eyes a break even when you don't feel tired". Follow Amanda as she learns how to keep her eyes healthy while coping with the changes of moving to a big city and the demands of education.

Marketing Notes: Locally produced picture children's book on Myopia prevention. To launch the book, Minister for Foreign affairs, Dr. Vivian Balakrishnan, read the book LIVE online to 5 to 7 year-olds from seven childcare centers across Singapore.

Once at her new school, Amanda noticed that all her new classmates wore glasses.

They always seemed to be studying or reading, not only during classes!

"Remember to give your eyes a break, even when you don't feel tired."

That way when you study the next time, you'll feel much more inspired."
